WORKSHOP OUTLINE

WORKSHOP OVERVIEW

The sixth AAPG Siliciclastic Reservoirs of the Middle East Workshop comes back to where it all has started. The workshop will take place in Kuwait from 8th to 10th of December 2025. Siliciclastic successions of the Middle East span all the way from Neo-Proterozoic to present-day. This workshop will bring diverse professionals from the industry and academia to cover different segments of the immense history of siliciclastics in the Middle East.

This workshop brings together professionals from different backgrounds to raise their on-going challenges, ask questions, and give answers. The sixth AAPG Siliciclastic Reservoirs of the Middle East Workshop provides innovative solutions for exploration and development through integrated and specialized studies including but not limited to sedimentology, stratigraphy, geochemistry, diagenesis, petrophysics, geophysics, reservoir modelling.

The workshop theme is "Innovative Solutions" which aims to cover a wide range of topics related to siliciclastic reservoirs with focus on overcoming challenge in innovative approach rather than the traditional methods. In addition to the presentations that fall under different sessions, this workshop will include breakout sessions, core viewing session and a geological field trip. These activities give the participants the opportunity to explore the geology of different areas, make observations, engage in fruitful discussions and connect with people from industry and academia.

WORKSHOP OBJECTIVES

The workshop aims to find innovative solutions that integrate different geological and geophysical methods in order to solve the present-day challenges in the industry. These solutions are expected to break new ground in our understanding of siliciclastic reservoirs and fill some of the critical knowledge gaps that we have in the Middle East.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

Geologists, sedimentologists, stratigraphers, seismic interpreters, geophysicists, petrophysicists, petroleum technologists, reservoir engineers and managers working in the exploration, appraisal and development of siliciclastic hydrocarbon reservoirs.
