Attendance

Expanding on long-term collaborative efforts, AAPG and SEG announced in 2014 a joint venture to co-present ICE around the globe to provide members and the greater oil and gas global industry with the highest level of geosciences information and data exchange opportunities. As integration between the geologist and geophysicist sectors continues to evolve, the collaborative presentation of ICE Barcelona 2016 gave exhibitors unprecedented access to a global audience of decision makers, thought leaders and technical experts from around the world. Attracting 709 of the world's best and brightest geologists, geophysicists and engineers from students and young professionals to the most seasoned industry experts and senior management representing 57 countries.
