WORKSHOP OUTLINE

In 2020, AAPG will launch its first GTW (Geosciences Technology Workshop) in Mozambique, partnering with ENH (Mozambique National Oil and Gas Company) with a focus on deepwater reservoirs and LNG. The goal will be to build scientific knowledge, discover innovations, and network with peers. AAPG has established the GTWs as the primary vehicle for scientific and technological knowledge exchange throughout the world.

The primary topic of the AAPG Deepwater and LNG Mozambique Geosciences Technology Workshop is offshore petroleum reservoirs, together with midstream, including LNG facilities, pipelines, processing, and exports. The goal of the event is to harness the knowledge and experience of global experts to share useful interdisciplinary findings and case studies, enhance decision-making, find better ways to develop reservoirs and infrastructure, and to stimulate investment.

Main topics to be covered include:

- Offshore clastics reservoirs: New knowledge and technologies
- Reservoir imaging and characterization
- Enhanced production techniques to optimize reservoirs
- LNG, exports, and markets
- Economics, finance, and risk in deepwater ventures
- LNG in Mozambique
